

The Austro-American Association:

Founded in Boston in 1944 and incorporated in 1970, the non-profit Austro-American Association was established to further the interest in Austria and Austrian culture and promote Austrian-American friendship.

Austrian and American members participate in a wide variety of social and cultural programs.

Events such as lectures, concerts, holiday celebrations, excursions, Stammtische and Heurige are frequently accompanied by fine Austrian cuisine.

A Scholarship Fund provides grants to scholars and artists in support of projects related to Austrian culture.

Veronica Jochum von Moltke

The daughter of eminent conductor Eugen Jochum, pianist Veronica Jochum von Moltke has been associated with musical greatness throughout her acclaimed career as a pianist and longtime educator at Boston's New England Conservatory.

A former student of piano legend Josef Benvenuti, Edwin Fischer, and Rudolf Serkin, she has performed in over 50 countries with premier orchestras like the Boston Symphony, the Berlin Philharmonic, the London Symphony and Philharmonic and the Orchestre National de France under the batons of renowned conductors.

Ms. Jochum has also collaborated with a myriad of musicians in the chamber music setting, performed her innovative "commentary concerts" around the world, and recorded for labels like Deutsche Grammophon, GM Recordings, Phillips, CRI, Laurel, Tahra, and Tudor among others.
